I've used Photoshop for many years now. For those who may not have experienced learning how to use Photoshop, Elements is perfect because if you don't know it's like a very good Photoshop. There are many features that Photoshop didn't have and I don't think Elements is the exception either. In Elements I don't even see a lot of new features, not even new brush and I don't think there is a settings or other things like that. It's great because I didn't want to learn how to use the keyboard, I wanted to learn about all the new ways to edit. I use Elements for my hobby and everyday life that's why it's amazing. Photoshop has been a god among the most cut-throat competitors. However, Versus company is a likely replacement. With them showing off a $1 million moolah contest, Adobe clearly knows that the "Photoshop vs. Elements" game is a lost cause. So what is Adobe going to do? They surely could have sought to sort of "buy" Versus, or otherwise attempt to get involved in the contest, but they have not. No one has a monopoly on good software. We are constantly seeing programs that do many of the same things as Adobe's—some better and others worse than Photoshop. It's called choice! If you want to use Photoshop, that's what you use. Otherwise, there are plenty of alternatives you can find on the likes of Live Tran , Bit Torrent , and Adobe . Adobe's credit card doesn't mean that you get one-on-one support. There's over 3,300 ways to contact Adobe. That's many more than any other company. But it's also a dubious strategy for Adobe. If you're not happy with their support, you can try to yell into the great wide Internet, or you can simply go somewhere else.
